Logical Deduction. "I suppose," remarked a thoughtful thinker, "that we women get to voting it will be your business."

"Why do you think so?" asked the unsuspecting druggist.

"Because," explained the thinker, "I will give the political situation a different complexion."

He Could Tell. "Attend—Pa, what is mamma doing about I just heard her say 'I am an outcaste.'"

"Pa—Oh, some writer has been reading the suffragettes, I guess."

"Attend—Then she just said 'I am an outcaste.'"

"Pa—Oh, that's some other fellow's lampooning us poor men."

GARDEN WORKING NOTES.
The woman who finds garden work an exhaustive task transforms it into a beautiful exercise by giving it her time in the early morning or twilight hours.
A small box of insecticide might make a comfortable seat and may be readily moved from place to place. It saves time.
The ground under the trees used by many birds is cheap and effective protection for the birds, more comfortable and more quickly adjusted than those which sit.
The best is a better bed in dry weather than the bare. Children, animals, and even the birds can generally have the best of both. A stick, board, or a small rug, is a best way for birds. Birds will grow on grass and eat their food.
If the ground is all growing under the feet of the birds, the best of both is lost, but the best is between the birds and the ground.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Pleasant Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers
as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Editor's Note.—It is our desire to make this department one of the most interesting and valuable features of the whole paper. To this end we ask the assistance of our readers. Choice verse and gems of thought will be gladly received. Here are our thanks for anything that our friends have sent or may send.

Hope on, hope ever, hope for the best.

Idle boys are the timber convicts are made of.

Draw slowly when you are in a hurry and save time.

Don't live in the cellar, but on the house top in God's bright sunshine.

Night today's battles instead of planning brilliant campaigns for the future.

Take good care and be thoughtful of mother, she may not be with you tomorrow.

My boy, my girl, remember there is no surer way of siding you up than by calling the company you keep.

Wid hearts and willing hands will do more towards making a model home than all the wealth this world affords.

The best capital for a boy is not money, but the love of work, simple tasks and a heart loyal to his friends, himself and his God.

Words To Teach and Comfort.

If you are down with the blues, read Psalm 27.

If there is a chilly sensation about the heart, read Rev. 3.

If you don't know where to look for the month's rest, read Psalm 27.

If you feel lonesome and unprotected, read Psalm 91.

If the stove pipe has fallen down and the cook goes off in a pet, put up the pipe, wash your hands, and read James 3.

If you find yourself being confused in men, read 1 Cor. 13.

If people tell you with hard words, read John 15.

If you are getting discouraged about your work, read Psalm 135 and Galatians 6:7-9.

If you are all out of sorts, read Hebrews 12.

The Working Girl.

"The girl who works—God bless her." She is brave and active; she is not too proud to earn her own living; she is not ashamed to be found at her daily task; she is studious, painstaking and patient; she smiles from behind the counter or the desk;
her smile is the reflection of celestial glories and eternal bliss; there is a memory of her own work into each taken gown; she is like a beautiful mountain; her character is pure as the building spire, strong as the rock from which it flows, and as high as the mountain's topmost pinnacle.
The sight of her should be a fine inspiration for us all. Her hands may be stained by dishwashing, sweeping, factory grime or printer's ink, but is an honest and helpful hand; it clears obstructions from many homes; it is the hand that protects many a forlorn family from the system. All honor to the girl who works.

To Parents.

It is unreasonable to expect an adult from long infancy to be entirely innocent, and much less that of a child. While we would not keep a child steadily employed, yet it should certainly have some duties.
From appearance, there are some boys who are at home but for their work and to sleep. They can be seen at any hour of the day, loafing in groups about town or making their way out of town to spend the day—who can say how or where? What can we expect as a result? Can we expect to see boys of tender, immature age, under such conditions, make worthy, intelligent, independent, Christian young men? And where is the parent who does not sit side by side his boys make such men?
Then he up and says, let your boys be a good duty given you to perform.
He will tell you how to do it.
You do many things, but important, which absorb your time and attention. Let these things go, let us not neglect your boys.

If mothers would only realize the true significance of the truth expressed in the title saying, "As the snail has lost the true mother," the next generation of men and women would surely be better in every way, for it is true that the future well-being of the man or woman, physically, mentally and spiritually, depends upon the thousand and one little acts of seemingly unimportance that make up the child's daily life. It is the home training the child receives that makes its future "for better or for worse."

We do not know whether it is false pride, false education, or a fashion we have drifted into, but it is plainly true that our girls more and more about housework, and many of the new homes in these days do not promise uninterrupted happiness from this cause. The girls are urged to try their hands at everything but the work of the home—the most needed and healthiest pursuit of all.
Wherever there is content and peace, there must be a good home. It is impossible for a family to enjoy life if the food is poor, the buttons off, and things generally in confusion. In every household where love and happiness abound, there is always a woman to be found looking after details, and sparing no pains to have things comfortable and inviting.

How many impressions we unconsciously place upon children! When small, they are subjected to kisses, frowns, pokes, rockings, and a multitude of intimacies that would be repeatedly repeated by older hands.
Then as they begin to grow, year after year, they are treated on every new occasion with "Why, how dreadfully you do grow! How frightfully tall you are getting! You look exactly like your Aunt Nancy, or your grandfather!" Or, "Where do you get the red hair?" etc. Personalities are not pleasant to adults, even to experienced persons who have learned to meet calmly, or partly such imperfections, but to children they are positively painful, as their blouses often testify, and tend to make them loafing and dislike to meet strangers.
Pray treat the little people with perfect politeness and consideration, for they are sensitive, and they do mind what you in your thoughtlessness ignore. They remember ill-treatment, too, often all their lives, and it is the part of wisdom to acquire and cherish the love and respect of the little folks.

LOCAL HISTORY.

with most decisive evidence of our obligations to God, and with abundant reasons to erect our Ebenezer, saying, "Hitherto the Lord hath helped us."

The time has arrived when the providence of God seems to indicate that it is our duty to leave this house as a place of worship and to occupy the one recently erected for the purpose. Before retiring, however, my hearers, will you allow me to make a few remarks expressive of my own feelings with all frankness and fidelity, and pardon my allusions that I may make of a personal nature.

To me this house has been a most interesting and delightful place. No other spot on earth has ever been dearer to me by such sacred relations and such hallowed associations and influences. The first Sabbath my youthful voice was ever heard in the public worship of God was heard in this house and for a period of more than twenty-seven years, when I comparatively few exceptions, when I have had strength to visit the sanctuary, my Sabbaths have been spent here. But this is not all I wish to say. The kindness and patience of my people and the manner in which they have received the truth and treated me have rendered my labors in this house comparatively light and easy. I came among you at a most critical period of life with no other claims to your regard than that which grew out of a commission placed in the hands of an inexperienced youth to preach the gospel, and yet parental tenderness and fidelity seemed but the natural feeling flowing out towards me from many hearts. It is this that has endeared this people to me and in connection with a sense of duty has operated as a motive to fidelity and perseverance in the service of God. And knowing something of the feelings of a stranger and advantages of a friend in youth, I resolved to offer all the aid in my power to you, but, more than all, the scenes I have witnessed in this house of surprising interest and joy will cause my thoughts to linger in delight about the consecrated spot long after it has ceased to be a place of worship of God. This is the birthplace of souls, of Zion it shall be said this and that man was born here. Here Christians have been fed with the bread of life and have enjoyed seasons of delightful fellowship with God and one another, and beholding the exhibitions of divine glory and partaking the pledges of affectionate regard for those who have seemed reluctant to depart.

Here Christians have mourned for sin, have wept and prayed, and been softened and subdued by the power of divine love. Here we have confessed and received pardon from the Divine Head, and heard, as it were,
His voice addressing us, "Go in peace and sin no more." Here we have worshipped and prayed for the conversion of our fellowmen with an importance that seemed wise to receive. And here, having wept with those who wept, we have also had our souls filled with joy unspeakable in consequence of the delight of those who have been brought to believe in Christ.

But God dwells not in temples made with hands. He does not cherish idolatrous or superstitious resorts for any object or purpose on earth. God may be worshipped with acceptance, if circumstances required it, in the open air, or in the most rudely constructed edifice. It is not so much the place as the feeling that renders our worship right and acceptable. God looks into the heart—He requires truth in the inward soul and those who worship Him, must worship Him in spirit and in truth.

We should be grateful to God, however, that He condescends to record His name on earth and has gra-tiously promised to be with His people and to aid and accept them in their attempts to worship Him. And while I desire and love to cultivate a grateful sense of delight with my people my first acknowledgement is due to God. Hitherto He has helped me, and He has employed an agency that was pre-eminently adapted to that purpose.

To be continued.
Alas!
Mr. Hanks—Be sure to tell me when you want me to go.
Miss Blunt—It's an hour too late for that!

NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS

NORWAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bradbury of Waterville were guests of Bradford M. Merrill during the week of County Fair.

A break in the water main Saturday noon near Witherell Park, caused no little commotion and inconvenience. Several hundred gallons of the Pennesseewassee fluid spread over portions of Main street before a shut off could be reached, and the offending section cut out.

Many base ball fans went to Mocheville Falls Saturday afternoon to witness the game between the Falls and Bates College.

The 67th annual Oxford Fair is a thing of the past, but passes into history as one of the best exhibitions held by the society. The first day's attendance was above the average; the middle day was not up to the mark of the two previous years, yet about normal; but more than the average number were on the grounds Thursday. All together, so far as attendance is concerned, the receipts in the box office are not far from the total of last year. Nearly $5,000 were taken for admissions during the three days, it is reported. The large company of fairs divided after the show. L. B. Walker transported his several outfits to Rochester, N. H.; Flint's Jungle show returned to Waterville to make ready for Fryeburg and Andover, while the others went over to Canton or returned to their several homes. E. H. Fellows shipped his merry-go-round and Ferris wheel to White River and will give everybody a good time during the present week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leith and daughter returned to their home at Lawrence, Mass., last week. Mr. Leith was obliged to leave many days before the date set owing to a dispatch bringing news of serious illness in his family.

The Radcliffe team closed their season Sept. 11, but played three extra games during the fair, winning the series in three straight from the Lewistons. Their season opened at the fair grounds May 15 and continued without interruption until the above mentioned date. They have played 25 games during the season and lost but five, which is not a bad showing. Out of the twenty-five players working for the team during the summer only "Kid" Harrison and Freddie LaFrance have gone the full distance. Big Tim Gannon has appeared twenty-four times; "Cy" Young, twenty-two; "Uncle Bill" Leith, twenty-one; Frank Lanan, twenty; Chasen, eighteen; Walter King, fourteen; Harley Rawson and Jimmy Karum, ten games each; and Ikey Lowell, nine. The remaining fifteen players have appeared from one to six contests. On the whole, the past season has been favorable to this out-of-door sport, for only on two occasions has the game been called on account of rain.

Both W. L. Merrill and Miss Libby secured excellent post card views of the County Fair crowds, side shows, the band and other interesting subjects. These cards sell like hot cakes.

Herbert Carter of Bethel had a good looking string of cattle here during the last big show. He received several colored ribbons and incidentally secured not a few cash premiums.

Edward N. Gilbert returned to his work at Rochester, N. H., last Monday. This visit to his home came near proving to be an expensive one, as he lost a valuable gold watch while attending the ball game, but the timepiece fortunately came out with honest people, so Mr. Gilbert recovered his property, after passing through several hours of hair-raising suspense.

The Actor (a terrible bore)—Awful! bad arrangements at Sloohport—played "Hamlet" there last week. Somebody yelled "fire!" and it took the audience 20 minutes to get out.

The Victim—I suppose the poor beggar was lame. What!—The Sketch.

Bigger Yet. "That," said Binkers, as he gazed in astonishment at his wife's new hat, "is the biggest thing I ever saw."

"Oh, that's nothing," rejoined Mrs. B. "Just wait till you get the bill for it."

He Got the Direction. But recently arrived, a shade bustling up to St. Peter.

"Say good man," said he, "will you tell me where I must go to get accurate post cards?"

And St. Peter, eyeing him sourly, told him where he could go to.

One Want Supplied. Walter—You'll find our roast goose very satisfactory, sir.

SOUTH PARIS.

A few words more about the Oxford County "Fair." To the mind of the writer the exhibition in all departments was never excelled. Of course, the threatening weather of Wednesday and Thursday mornings kept the attendance down below that of some previous years, but the show itself was not injured, and it certainly was a dandy. The amount of stuff in the exhibition hall was as great, if not greater, than ever before, and the quality of the highest class.

The granges, Paris, Norway, West Paris and Watford, all had exhibits to be proud of, and we should not have liked the job of saying where the highest premium should go. Every bit of the space was occupied and this in itself gave one the best impression. Empty spaces in the hall look bad. The fairs were also present in larger numbers than ever before and were quiet and orderly during their stay here. The races and ball games were interesting, much more so than they have been for some years. It must be voted a success, and had the weather been clear there is little doubt but what all figures of attendance would have been broken Wednesday. The society was fortunate in having each of the old officers accept a reelection.

Trundy's lunch car is now located just below Odd Fellows' Block in Market Square. It is a new car and as it is kept neat and clean it certainly looks tempting to the hungry. It is a new enterprise for our village, and we hope the proprietor will secure a good patronage.

School children are again seen in flocks upon the streets in the morning and at noon, all schools having commenced Monday.

According to the usual custom, there was a ball game at the High School grounds at the beginning of the fall term between a combined team from the freshman and junior classes and a team from the sophomore and senior classes. The game was played Monday afternoon, but no one seems to know just what the score was. The sophomore-senior team admits that the freshmen and their assistants were ahead when they stopped playing, but they claim that the umpire was a big handicap to their chances of winning. They are not losing any sleep over their defeat, anyway. For the first time for several seasons the school expects to be represented by a foot ball team this fall. The game has been played here very little since the new rules went into effect and the boys don't expect to accomplish wonders, but they want a team and are going to have one. To make things interesting, Norway High will also have a team and as they have done no more playing under the new rules than Paris, the teams will probably be evenly matched and some interesting games should be the result.

Henry A., the young son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Plummer of this village, took the first prize in the 15-month-old class at the baby show at the fair, and also was awarded the cup presented by the Dr. J. F. True Co. for being the prettiest baby among the prize winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry DeCoster of Lynn, Mass., have been visiting Mrs. DeCoster's sister, Mrs. George M. Cutting, and have now gone to visit another sister in Andover. They are accompanied by two friends and are making the trip by auto.

This Thursday afternoon and evening the Ladies of the G. A. R. will hold their annual sale of useful and fancy articles, home made candies, ice cream, etc., in G. A. R. Hall. Favor them with your patronage.

The season for bird hunting is at hand and already Wirt Stanley, our leading wing shot, has brought in several good strings of partridge and woodcock. He gives considerable of the credit to his fine dog "Ry."

Thursday afternoon after returning from the fair, just as she stepped from the electric car in front of Shattuck's drug store, Mrs. W. B. Edwards was run into and knocked down by Fred Thibodeau, who was driving W. O. Frothingham's car harnessed to a road cart. Mrs. Edwards was considerably bruised, but not seriously injured. Thibodeau was arrested on the charge of intoxication and before the Norway Municipal Court Saturday was found guilty and paid a fine of ten dollars and costs.

Fred Scott of Breton has sold his house on Skillega avenue now occupied by the families of Elmer Aldrich and Carl Stevens to Charles T. Buck. It is expected that Mr. Buck and his son, Dr. C. L. Buck, will occupy the house as soon as possible.

Rev. Hannah J. Powell has been engaged by the trustees of the Universalist Church to occupy the pulpit from Oct. 1st to Jan. 1st, 1910.

Louis W. Clark has returned to Burdett Business College, Boston, to continue his studies. He was accompanied by Harry A. Titcomb, who will also take a course there.

Albert Stevens has charge of the Sunday papers here now. Harry A. Titcomb has been the popular news-boy for several years.

A party of thirty-one relatives gathered at the home of J. E. Murch on Porter street Saturday evening to make merry his forty-fifth birthday. Refreshments were served and numerous gifts were received, including a toy automobile, which ran too well to be really appreciated.

George H. Clark has gone to Boston and is enrolled as a student in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. People in the village have already seen specimens of George's ingenuity, and this training ought to prove a fine thing for him.

Miss Ruth Blood is attending school at Westbrook Seminary. Miss Katherine Morton is taking a short course in a school in Boston.

Miss Flora Murch is the new assistant in the post office.

The Ladies' Aid of the Baptist Church will serve a harvest supper this Thursday evening. All invited. The Baptist people are rather disappointed over the failure of their pipe organ to arrive. The company of which it was purchased expected to be able to deliver it the last of August, but now it is not expected before the last of the present month. Everything is in readiness for it when it does arrive.

The rest of the news at this writing seems to be about fair visitors but as space will not permit mention of only a few, we will leave them all out with the hope that they all enjoyed themselves and will be with us again next year.

A RED LETTER DAY.

fection and inspiration in his forming days.

It gives me more pleasure than I can express to introduce to the people of Bethel and vicinity, our academy's greatest benefactor, Hon. L. E. Holden, of Cleveland, Ohio.

MR. HOLDEN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees and friends of Gould's Academy:

In 1852 I came to Gould's Academy. Dr. N. T. True was the principal, and I had heard of him as a teacher, for the fame of a successful teacher goes far and wide.

It had been my fortune to have two terms of instruction in School District Number One in Sweden, under Simeon Walker. He went to Bridgton Academy as a teacher and I followed him in the fall of 1850. I was much to Simeon Walker. He was the most effective teacher that I ever knew. Keen in his perceptions, intense in his activities, both mental and physical, and just the personality to inspire others to study, to do something and to be something. It would be impossible for me to tell the influence this man had over me in creating within me a love of learning and a desire for honorable position in life. The distinctive persons to whom I am indebted for influences in my formative days, were, first, my mother; second, Simeon Walker; third, Dr. N. T. True, and last, and not least, Dr. Henry P. Tappin, the president of the University of Michigan.

Before I came to Bethel, I had taught district schools in Chatham, New Hampshire, and in Walpole, Massachusetts. I was qualified to judge a good teacher, so when I came to Bethel and placed myself under the instructions of Dr. True, I soon learned his worth as friend and teacher. I was in his classes the most of two years, until I entered Waterville College in the fall of 1853. Broad minded, clear headed, with a large love of nature and a charming interest in students who tried to do something and to be something, he was especially a lover of nature and a student of natural history. He was one of the first in the State to collect mineral and botanical specimens, one who stepped outside of the classics and yet never ceased to follow the influence of the classics. As teacher and friend, he stands out among the best in the memory of his students. So I came to him and was able to understand him and to appreciate his efforts, as a man broader than the text books, larger than the Academy Hall; a man of fine feeling and much more than ordinary ability. I speak these things in order to show you I am indebted to Gould's Academy and how through all these years I have remembered Bethel, the Academy and Dr. True.

A few years ago I came to Bethel and, as always, I called on Dr. and Mrs. Gehring and other friends of the academy and talked over his interests. I was made acquainted with Mr. Hanscom, the principal, and saw at once that he was the right man in the right place, and that he was a natural and gifted teacher. He reminded me in many ways of Simeon Walker, the man to whom I am so greatly indebted. I heard that other students had learned of his qualities and were making efforts to take him away from Gould's Academy. So as an inducement to keep him here, and that he might have a home worthy of himself and family, I bought the cottage and gave it to Gould's Academy, feeling that the first duty was to make the principal comfortable and happy. Two years afterwards I came back here, and in talking with Mr. Hanscom and others, I found that the conditions had so changed that it was difficult for him to find rooms or places for the students to live, and that this was becoming a serious drawback to the prosperity of the academy. My attention was called to the Bowler property, adjoining the academy. It seemed to me as though it was fore-ordained that this property had been saved to become a part of the academy property. An interview was sought with Mr. Bowler and the property was purchased and plans immediately made for changing the buildings into a dormitory, and now it is completed. The building seems to have been well planned and will, no doubt, be a help in providing homes for students. It is as important for the students to be made comfortable as it is for the principal, so when these two ends are accomplished, the academy can go on doing its work as it has done in years gone by.

To me there is no such a system of instruction as the common school system coupled with good academics. These are typically the New England school system. It is valuable because it teaches the individual boy or girl in the wisest way, appealing to

ers. If ability and ambitions are developed in the school district, very soon the teacher, parents and the community mark and encourage the pupil, and he is encouraged to go on doing his best, and in due course of time from out the district school he goes to the academy. It is an example of the survival of the fittest; it is a part of that divine democracy which inspires the individual to a fuller realization of his possibilities. The same principle is applied in the academy; boy or girl, whether writer or speaker, whether student in the classics or in the sciences, wherever ability is shown it is encouraged, and thus in the most American system of education, the realization of the inherent possibilities is most naturally attained. So it has always seemed to me that the best uses of money is an educational use, and especially when the money is applied to the development of academic instruction.

This building which we are called together to dedicate this day and the land on which it stands, is dedicated to educational work, and in that work I mean individual work, high purpose, honorable ambitions, sincere character, honor, respect for others and interest in the common welfare of the people, the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

To this end, and for the help of those who are willing to help themselves in work and in study and who are willing to help others less fortunate by instruction and by example, we dedicate this building and consecrate this land as a part of the foundation of Gould's Academy.

It is my pleasure to present to you, Mr. President and your fellow members of the Board of Trustees of Gould's Academy, a properly executed deed for the property.

Chairman Hanscom, in the introduction of the next speaker, said:

During all the years of my connection with Gould's Academy, a quiet, modest, unassuming man has been at the head of its Executive Committee, and for some years has presided over the deliberations of its trustees. A loyal friend of education, and possessing an abiding faith in boys and girls, he has been ever ready to do all in his power, financially or otherwise, to promote the welfare of the institution. Himself a teacher in early life, and a man of far-seeing judgment, your principal has over found him a wise counselor in solving the problems of administration and discipline, that have arisen from time to time.

I am happy to call upon Hon. A. E. Herrick, president of the Board of Trustees, to accept this magnificent gift, in behalf of Bethel and of Gould's Academy.

JUDGE HERRICK'S ADDRESS.

It becomes my pleasant duty at this time, speaking for the trustees, to accept the deed of the new dormitory and to acknowledge the debt of gratitude which we owe Mr. Holden for the valuable and most appropriate gifts which he has made to Gould's Academy. And I need not limit this acknowledgment to the trustees for I know that every friend of the school, wherever he may be, joins with me in any words of appreciation and thankfulness which I may speak this afternoon.

This is not the first evidence of his generosity; once before we have received a similar instrument conveying the principal's home. We are thus doubly indebted and the only thing we have to offer in return is the assurance that we recognize the obligations we are under to our benefactor and to promise such a stewardship on our part as will make the means, which he has placed in our hands, work for the greatest good to the school. And I think I may promise for the patrons of the academy that they will meet the new conditions, growing out of the use of the dormitory, in the same loyal spirit which they have always shown.

There is nothing that touches so deeply the springs of all our hopes and ambitions as the subject of education. Fathers and mothers, today, are anxious to give to their children greater advantages than they themselves enjoyed. They know that education commands respect everywhere and adds to the value of service. They see that the training and discipline gained in our higher schools and colleges give a better chance to succeed in any kind of business and open the door to every profession. But apart from its importance as a help in gaining a livelihood, education is needed for a full comprehension of the joys and duties of life in its individual relations and for us as citizens of a great republic it becomes a necessity. It is the very foundation stone upon which rests the structure provided in the constitution for the preservation of civil liberty.

We have read in history how in the darkest of the dark ages a great patron of learning and of the fine arts was elected, almost by chance, to the great office of Pope of Rome. He began at once to gather about him men of learning. He sent his agents into all lands and gathered books and parchments. He kept a large force of clerks at work copying and distributing, so that the knowledge, which in those writings contained and which had been so carefully guarded in the hands of a few, might become more general. He founded libraries and institutions of learning. Among other things he chartered the great University of Glasgow, which has stood for nearly five hundred years and has been such a potent factor in raising Scotland from a state bordering on barbarism to a condition where she ranks among the highest in character and intellect. The work which this man did began at once to create a spirit of inquiry and to undermine the great ecclesiastical institution of which he was the head, and the fruit of that work was the Reformation. Then began the long and bitter struggle by the people against the entrenched forces of despotism. The people fought for freedom of speech, liberty to worship according to the dictates of conscience, and the right to a fair representation in the administration of the affairs of state. They have won many and notable victories; but the end is not yet.

It seems to be a rule in this world that whatever rights the people gain at the cost of a great struggle can be retained only at the price of eternal vigilance.

The liberal hearted, broad minded men, who today are opening up new avenues to the fields of learning, are carrying forward and perfecting the same work which Pope Nicholas V. unwittingly began. He did not foresee the results of his labor; but our benefactors are building not alone for this day and generation, but for all time. In this great work we can all join hands and then the hand of the strong will always help the weak. Today we are grateful for the strong hand that is helping us.

When we ponder upon these things, who wonders that this meeting of the friends and alumni of our school excites a keen interest. Today we are one in thought and purpose. We look upon youth and think of its promise. We recall memories of the fathers' hopes and recollections are strangely intermingled. We rejoice in the bright prospect before us but turn back to the days when those wise and good men, seeing the future but dimly, but with a perfect faith, laid the foundations of Gould's Academy.

It would be good for us often to read the seventeen names appearing in its charter. Some of the best blood of England was in their veins. They inherited Puritan homes which stand for strict moral living and higher education. They were brothers in spirit with those other Puritans who landed on the shores of Massachusetts Bay in 1630 and six years afterward founded Harvard College. Who can measure the good which has resulted from the action taken by those men? As our noble Androsaggin on his way to the sea widens and deepens as it goes, so the influences of Gould's Academy have come down to us, increasing with the years. The students who come here for instruction return to their homes carrying with them new hopes, higher ambitions and a broader conception of life, and if they are content to take up the work of their fathers and mothers, as most of them must do, they have that which will enable them to become leading citizens in their respective localities. But many have gone forth into a larger and more strenuous life and have won distinction.

There is not time to recall the names of Gould's distinguished sons and daughters and it is not necessary. They are known to you all. The generosity of one of them has brought us together today. One feeling influences us all. It is the desire to honor him and to pay him a fitting tribute. For many years the trustees were sorely perplexed by the want of funds. In 1900 the alumni and friends, the best asset which any school has, took up the matter and temporary relief was furnished. That was the dawn of a new era in the history of the school. Since that time it has greatly prospered and increased in numbers. There has been a growing demand for more room for students in this village.

The same hand that gave us the principal's home has again met the need and given us a dormitory. All the world loves a man who can give like a prince. We admire the strength that enables one man to pile up a colossal fortune. But President Hyde says, that the truly great man is he who gathers with his right hand and distributes wisely with his left.

Hereafter when the dark days come and the way is obscure we shall have as a ground of hope the thought of the great hearted generosity that gave us Holden Hall. Today we feel the courage that comes from renewed strength, and confident of the future, we owe and all salute Mr. Holden as Gould's Academy's greatest benefactor.

Following the address of Hon. A. E. Herrick music was again furnished by the orchestra, following which Chairman Hanscom introduced the Hon. Bert M. Fernald, Governor of Maine, in the following words:

I trust I may be pardoned, if I turn for a moment from the consideration of our programs to indulge in a brief bit of personal reminiscence.

Somewhat more than twenty-five years ago, a tall, uncouth country lad of seventeen was attending school in a rural community in one of our Maine towns. He was desirous of an education, but possessed little confidence in his ability to obtain it. The superintendent of schools evidently imagined that he saw some indication of latent ability in this youth, and after much persuasion, induced him to teach a small district school. This mark of confidence was, perhaps, the first real inspiration that this motherless boy had ever had to do something and become something of value in the world. The money earned in teaching was spent in attending the Academy, and the process repeated again and again, until a regular course of study had been completed. Later he adopted teaching as his life-work, and, finally, by some accident of circumstance rather than because of any peculiar fitness for the position, he became principal of Gould's Academy, where for twelve years he has been honored by the confidence of the best people of the best town in the State of Maine.

The superintendent of schools entered upon a highly successful business career and drifted into politics, being finally honored by the highest office in the gift of the Commonwealth.

Today the humble-minded teacher is given the opportunity to acknowledge a long-standing obligation, as well as the great pleasure and honor of introducing to a Bethel audience the ex-superintendent of schools, the friend of his youth, in the person of His Excellency Gov. Bert M. Fernald of all Maine.

GOV. FERNALD'S ADDRESS.

Members of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Holden, ladies and gentlemen: I am peculiarly touched this afternoon by these exercises and what your principal has had to say. I recall so well the long time ago when he, as a motherless boy, was persuaded to teach a small district school. He possessed the same manly, sterling qualities then that he does today and he has made as a man what we as neighbors expected of him as a boy. The people of Bethel know his worth, and you, Mr. Holden, have discovered something of his value. As a citizen of the old town where he was born I am especially proud of him; and I bring to him, not only the greetings of his old town, but of the citizens of the whole State of Maine.

The scenic beauty of this noble hill top, the grandeur of these majestic mountains, this panorama that stretches out before you is a fitting place for the institution which you have established, Mr. Holden. To achieve success is the duty of every boy and girl in Maine and the accomplishment of it is possible for all who are willing to pay the price of patience, perseverance, temperance and hard work. Sometimes we ask ourselves, what is success. It is not alone standing at the head of a great institution, it is not alone holding a high office, but the man that stands at the head of any business with which he is associated is a successful man. The blacksmith in your village who understands full well the anatomy of the horse's foot which he clothes with its iron shoe is a successful blacksmith and the farmer who causes two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before is a successful farmer.

A few weeks ago I had occasion to speak at the Hamlin Memorial in the town of Paris and in looking over the great men that have been furnished by this grand old county found six governors of the State were born here, six governors of other States, twenty representatives in Congress, four United States senators and one vice president, who was associated, Mr. Holden, with the greatest President which your great country ever produced, Abraham Lincoln. Superintendents of schools in different States, one general in the army some from this grand old County of Oxford, which hasn't a superior in the United States. It is too bad that we lose so many men to the west like our friend, Mr. Holden, but we take especial pride, as they return to us in after years, and the splendid things they are doing for us in establishing homes and dormitories like what he has done here, and building up our schools and academies. We have reason to feel proud of our product of men and women we are sending out all over this Country. I feel proud of the old State of Maine and you will pardon me if I seem to indulge in praise of her and her product of great men which she has been giving to this world for the past fifty years. And not alone are we of her product, but there are other things which make her one of the great States of our great Country. The noble Androsaggin which skirts your fair town with its source among these majestic mountains has a greater fall in its one hundred and fifty miles of length than the Mississippi with its three thousand miles, and although small, as it is, with various industries, yet it has undeveloped water power sufficient almost to turn the wheels of the Republic. But of all the wonderful resources and products of the State of Maine the greatest product, ladies and gentlemen, is its crop of boys and girls that we are scattering over the United States.

I am proud of this little village, and of this grand old town of Bethel for its loyalty, its generosity, its patriotism. I am proud of Maine because she is the most superb and magnificent State in the most ideal Republic that ever existed; and I bring to you the greetings and best wishes of all the people of the whole State of Maine. And to you, Mr. Holden, as an expression of appreciation and gratitude for your loyalty to your Alma Mater, as manifested in your gift of this beautiful building to the old academy, I bring greetings from all the people of the entire State.

Concluding Governor Fernald's address the benediction was pronounced by Rev. C. L. Banghart.

RECEPTION.

A pretty reception was held in Odeon Hall, Thursday evening, with Principal Frank E. Hanscom, Honorable Liberty E. Holden and Governor Bert M. Fernald in the receiving line and F. B. Merrill, H. C. Rowe, Gilbert W. Tuell, Chas. Hamlin and Elton Keene acting as ushers, while on the platform Mrs. Hanscom, Mrs. Holden, Mrs. Fernald and Mrs. True met the ladies, who were introduced to them by Mrs. Gehring and Mrs. Herrick.

Light refreshments were served and the reception was followed by dancing. The affair was a pleasant and happy one and made a fitting close for a day which will long linger in the memory of the people of Bethel and the friends of Gould's Academy.

Geo. W. Bradley, an employee of the International Paper Co., received a telegram last week concerning the information that his brother, Malcolm Bradley, was dead at the home in Gardiner, P. I. The telegram was sent to Rumford, and had been forwarded here.

A rumor current to very much later than the present time. He has been experimenting and has become convinced that the spirit of the dead can return, and also that evil spirits can be sent away. Those who have the party have often been asked what made them so "off color," but are convinced that it was the quality of the spirit that controlled them.

The day in a certain place where the crowd is said, was waiting for something to startle him to start his morning back of sleeping up the street. The program was, "Have you ground your teeth yet?" The first person was a lady of fifty who had been long a lady in place. She was waiting on the other side of the street. She was waiting to see the person of her name. When he arrived he had a hand full of gum that he had scraped off the under side of the table. It had been put there by the person who was not at the table the day before. The program was, "We get much more than that every morning in the light of the moon."

WOMEN'S WOES.

Maine Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ill. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Marie Evans, living at 700 Prospect avenue, Rumford Falls, Me., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for years. The kidney secretions were very unnatural, and I was scarcely ever free from pains in the small of my back. I also had dull headaches, lacked energy and felt generally miserable. I was always taking medicine, but nothing ever proved of as much benefit to me as Dean's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlhenny Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Dean's—and take no other.

Miss Martha Mixer has gone to Mt. Holyoke, where she is attending college.

Next Friday evening there will be a parish meeting of the Universalist Society at the church parlors. Within the history of the society there has never been a brighter outlook than now. The committee, consisting of James A. Stevenson, Basie Virgin and Louise Martin, has made a canvass of the parish and are ready to report, and will do so at this meeting. It is understood that the committee has a very encouraging report to make. All members of the parish are requested to be present, and all others who are interested are cordially invited to be present, for a matter will be discussed that needs the fullest consideration of all who go to the church.

A PART OF SMITH'S CROSSING SETTLEMENT IN ASH.

Thursday morning, the 16th, seven dwelling houses were burned at Smith's Crossing. Nine families were turned out, besides the store kept in the rear of one house by Patsy Papadopolis. It was in that house cellar that the fire originated. The house was owned by Harry Haines.

Papadopolis had just finished making an addition to his store at his own expense, and had no insurance on the stock. He thinks his loss is $600. The following families were turned out, some of all and others of part of their household goods:

Winona Smith, J. H. Constantine, Michael Sullivan, Jack Crater, Joseph Gerato, James Clark, Harry Haines. These houses were located at the west of the railroad track, nearly opposite the crossing. There is a settlement there under the brow of the hill, that is separated from the rest of the Southville village by the railroad, the hill, and the preponderance of Italian residents. The houses were all tenement and were most all built by Frank Smith. The fire is said to have originated from a kerosene lamp that was left burning in the cellar of the Haines house. The fire was discovered shortly after 3 o'clock a. m. As it is out of the fire district, no alarm was sounded, and the neighbors formed a bucket line, and protected nearby houses that were not in the group that were enveloped in flames, almost as soon as the cry of fire was made.

Mr. Frank Smith owned four of the houses, and they were insured. Bridge Avenue of Peru owned one house; inwardly, Harry Haines' home was the most costly one of the seven. The total loss was from $10,000 to $12,000.

Old coin collection.

The Lincoln penny had brought out the stories of old coin collectors, and Mr. H. J. Reynolds of Mexico has an exhibition in the Rumford National Bank window a collection that he claims to be worth $200.

He has at least one of the large coins for every year they were struck, and for several years he has two or more, five being the largest number for any one year. The coinage began in 1793 and continued on to 1817. In 1817 there were some coins. The coin of 1793 is said to be worth $25. The coins are well preserved.

A POCKET PEDDLER CAUGHT.

Last Thursday morning a young fellow named James Carney was sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars for a single sale of whiskey. He was additionally sentenced to pay $100 and costs on each of the two following complaints: Search and seizure, and keeping and depositing. He was put under bonds of $200 in each case to appear at the Supreme Court. Deputy Sheriff Leon M. Small made the arrest. He witnessed Carney, who is known as "Jimmy," the "Pocket Man," sell a pint to one Charles Shorty. Shorty was summoned to court, and reluctantly testified to the fact. Peter Stymest was also summoned and failed to appear, and a warrant was issued for him.

A RELIO THAT HAS COME THROUGH FIVE GENERATIONS

The relic is upon us, and when persons begin to bring forth their keepsakes and handed down from father-to-son mementos many peculiar and interesting things are brought to view. Mr. Austin E. Frisbie brought to the CITIZEN office in Rumford the other day a cane that had come to him through his father from John A. Frisbie, an old whaler from New Bedford. The cane had been handed down from father to son through five generations, the present owner being the fifth.

The cane is a novelty, for it is made from the backbone of a whale that was caught on the shores of Greenland as early as 1720. The story is that Mr. Frisbie's great-grandfather was on the voyage, and helped in the capture of the whale, and scraped the bone that forms the body of the cane himself. Later, he got a walrus tooth and carved or ground out a head for the cane. The body now is a little bent, and may have always been so, but that is the only indication that it has great age, as a cane. As whales live to a great age, the bone may be three hundred years old. The head is whiter than the body, and is capable of taking a high polish. The cane has passed through the ownership (since the first owner) of Austin S. Frisbie, who must have come into possession of it about the time of the Revolutionary War; Col. Austin S. Frisbie, Jr., about the time of the second war with England; Geo. E. Frisbie, about the Civil War time, and into the hands of Austin E. Frisbie, the present owner, 1894. From him it will go to his oldest living son at the time of his death.

In addition to this Mr. Frisbie has a ten cent script of the war period that has blood stains on it, and it is claimed that the script was taken from the body of a slain soldier on the Gettysburg battle field. Mr. Frisbie takes the story from an old soldier, whom he got it from, in about 1870.

Startling.

"Yes, our table is always up to date," boasted the landlady. "We have these beautiful red candles on it at supper time."

"Candles for supper!" gasped the prospective boarder. "Madam, do you think I am an Eskimo?"

Getting Ready for the Opera.

"Aren't you ready, dear?" he called upstairs.

"Not quite," was the wife's reply. "It ought not to take you so long to put your hat on."

"I'm not going to wear any hat."

"Well, it ought not to take you so long not to put one on!"—Yankers Statesman.

INDIVIDUAL HOUSE FOR HOGS

Permits Free Circulation of Air and Greatly Relieves Oppression of Pigs Seeking Shelter.

The illustration represents a form of cot designed by Prof. R. S. Shaw, dean of the Michigan Agricultural College. It is six by eight feet at the foundation with the sides rising perpendicularly three feet before receiving the half-pitch roof boards. The center boards on the sides are hinged so that they can be swung open in the hot weather; the opening thus made is covered with strong wire, clamped above and below between inch boards; the inner clamp boards project an inch beyond the outer ones, thus breaking the joints and preventing any draught when the openings are closed. The two ridge boards are also hinged so that they can be opened during the hot weather. These openings permit a free circulation of air, which not only lowers the temperature, but greatly relieves the oppression of the pigs in seeking shelter. The hinged roof boards close down tightly, giving warm quarters in the cold weather. The cots proper are supported on skids, on which they are not attached, being held in place by the blocking of the ties across both ends. A two-inch bottom is used or not as desired; this floor is cut into lengths to fit crosswise and rest on the skids, which are wider than the sills. This cot is not desirable for the farrowing sow without the addition of a railing around the perpendicular walls a few inches from the floor to prevent overlying her pigs. Probably the chief objection to this structure is the expense of material and cost of construction. It contains 160 feet of stock lumber, 90 feet matched, 20 feet four by six, 12 feet four by four in construction.

NO TIME TO LOSE.

"Is your mistress at home?" asked the lady at the door.
"No, ma'am."
"Do you expect her soon?"
"She ought to be home any minute now." "Here—hurry! Take my card, and be sure to tell her Mrs. Jennison called."

A lamp that's run by kerosene is not the best of lights; The reason is a common one—It smokes and goes out nights.

Breeding Sweet Corn.
Considerable tabular data are given by the New Jersey experiment station, showing the effect, as indicated by the composition, of breeding sweet corn by the ear to row method. Three plants were selected from the first year's planting, and analyses made of a number of ears from each row. These ears were allowed to ripen, and were planted in the season of 1907. The result again indicated the tendency of certain individual ears to transmit a high percentage of sugar, and that this tendency prevails throughout the entire row grown from such an ear. The Crosby varieties was found to be much sweeter than the Stowell Evergreen.

Fresh Honey on Farm.
Fresh honey on the farm is a most excellent food and an appreciated delicacy for any table. Bees are the most cheaply kept of all domestic animals, and they do much good to fruit trees and other plants in carrying pollen for greater fruit production. They are both interesting and profitable, and every farmer should keep at least a few colonies with plenty of new hives and other supplies to care for the surplus honey and any new or stray swarms that come off during the summer. There is an old saying: "A swarm of bees in May is worth a load of hay," and a load of hay is worth $10.

Advantages of the Separator.
One of the greatest advantages of the hand separator is the reduction of hauling and handling the dairy product when a creamery is patronized. In the busy summer season, when the time of men and teams is valuable, much time is wasted in hauling milk to the creamery and waiting turns to get the skimmed milk to bring back almost as much as the product is worth.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again, and relieved of all my suffering. —Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.
If you would like special advice also, please write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS APPROPRIATED TO PREVENT TUBERCULOSIS.

Appropriations of over $4,000,000 for the suppression of consumption have been made by twenty-eight state legislatures in session during the past year, according to a statement issued today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Since January 1, 1909, forty-three state and territorial legislatures have been in session. Of this number, 28 have passed laws pertaining to tuberculosis; eight others have considered such legislation, and in only seven states no measures about consumption were presented. In all, 101 laws relating to the prevention or treatment of human tuberculosis were considered and out of this number 64 were passed.

Of the sixty-four laws passed, fourteen were in reference to building new state institutions. New state sanatoria for tuberculosis will be built in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, where three will be erected, Arizona, Oregon, South Dakota, North Dakota and Florida. In New York, North Carolina, Indiana, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine, appropriations have been made for enlarging sanatoria, already being built or in operation. There are now 27 States where such institutions have been established. Every State east of the Mississippi, except Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina and Mississippi have provided hospitals for tuberculosis patients.

Five States, Illinois, New York, Ohio, Minnesota and Iowa, passed laws giving their county officers power to erect tuberculosis sanatoria without resorting to a special vote. In Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Michigan, Iowa and Kansas, laws providing for the strict reporting and registration of tuberculosis were passed. Only five other States, including the District of Columbia, have such laws. The National Association considers laws of this character as the first requisite in an organized movement against tuberculosis.

Laws prohibiting promiscuous spitting in public places, were passed in Maine, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Kansas and Connecticut. Spitters in these States will be prosecuted and fined.

Ten States have this year granted nearly $100,000 to be spent only for the education of the public about tuberculosis. In some States traveling exhibitions will be used, while in others lectures and literature will be the chief means of education. The States making provision of this sort are California, New Jersey, Kansas, New York, Rhode Island, Iowa, Minnesota, Porto Rico, Delaware and Texas.

The statement of the National Association calls particular attention to one fact which shows the remarkable interest in anti-tuberculosis work, evoked during the past year, namely, that fully one-third of the $1,000,000 appropriated this year is by special legislation and for new work. The last Congress appropriated, in addition to this sum, nearly $7,000,000 for the maintenance of the three federal sanatoria in New Mexico and Colo-

They also called on friends in Norway and Mechanic Falls. Fifty years ago this fall Mrs. Abbott, who was then Miss Fannie Dean, was attending the same fair with one Phineas Abbott of East Rumford, to whom she was then engaged to be married. On calling at a cousin's home to see if they could be accommodated with lodging, the owner of the house laughingly replied that they had only one guest room and he guessed they would have to be married. Mr. Abbott at once arose to the occasion and said he thought that could be arranged and proceeded with his fiancée to the Methodist parsonage, where they were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by Rev. Mr. Stickfield. The young couple had no thought of marriage at that time and the date of their marriage was three years to a day from the time they commenced "keeping company."

It is estimated besides that the numerous county and municipal appropriations made or to be made for tuberculosis work for next year will aggregate at least $2,000,000, making the official public expenditures in the United States for the wiping out of tuberculosis at least $5,000,000.

COURTIS AEROPLANE TO BE SHOWN AT "1915" BOS-TON EXPOSITION.

Boston, September 14.—The aeroplane of Glenn H. Curtiss, in which he has won signal triumphs abroad, has been secured as an exhibit for the "1915" Boston Exposition, to be held in the old Art Museum Building next November. It was in this aeroplane that Mr. Curtiss won the $10,000 Prix de la Vitesse at Rheims this summer, and he is now at Brescia, Italy, making flights in another aviation contest which are bringing him fresh successes. He is expected to bring the apparatus back to the United States late in September, and during the month of November it will be on view in the old Art Museum Building at Copley Square. One of the machines during the exposition to explain the principle of the aeroplane and of flight. This aeroplane is considered a peculiarly appropriate exhibit for an exposition of the prophetic turn contemplated by the management of this enterprise, since it will serve to indicate present development in the art of flying and to point to the efficiency which may be expected of these aeroplanes by the year 1915.

A further element of interest in connection with this exhibit is that it was possible to secure it through the assistance of volunteer workers for the "1915" movement. Realizing that this "1915" Boston Exposition is to be a "citizens' show," Boston 1915 has invited the co-operation of all citizens who wish to manifest their public spirit by helping the project. The Curtiss Aeroplane is only one of many valuable exhibits. There are many others to be provided by means of the enthusiastic co-operation of the citizens.

SERMON ON LIMITATIONS
AT MEXICO CONGREGA-TIONAL CHURCH.

At the Congregational Church in Mexico last Sunday the pastor spoke upon the usefulness of limitations in individual lives. The object lesson of a river confined within its banks was taken to show the need of limitations, for if there were no banks to the river it would be a swamp, and useless for the many purposes that rivers now serve. So the things that are considered narrow in the human life, are as likely to be the very things that direct the energies to a useful end, and as the preventative of the ambitions entertained from consumption.

He spoke of the various things that are in the lives of many of the great thinkers, poets and philosophers, and cited instances that indicated that Jesus had limitations, and the speaker concluded that such restrictions were the safeguards of many lives.

MEXICO SCHOOLS.

The public schools of the town of Mexico opened Monday, the 13th, with an enrollment of over four hundred pupils. The first division will attend school from 8.45 a. m. to 12.15 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2.30 p. m. The second division will attend school from 12.15 to 12 m. and from 2.30 to 4 p. m. A more suitable arrangement will be made as soon as possible.

Parents are requested to enforce prompt attendance by their children at each session of school.
